

* * Sexcapade * *

This book is for the sexually adventurous. The things talked about in here are not suitable for people that would feel uncomfortable with 'strange bedroom behaviour'. The ideas are not violent as long as they use discretion. If you find yourself thinking of silence as a way to relieve your stress, well, a simple orgasm will do the trick for you!

Please do not think of doing these things if you don't really want to. This book is based on emotions from the woman's point of view and the male's. Featured herein are many fantasies and then the explanations for them logically. It has been put together with a male and female point of view to maximise the effect for goading people into being the submitter, as naturally the more powerful you feel the more you want to feel mortality, being brought down to earth, worrying about who your real friends are, and you force yourself to feel more vulnerable.

If you have a big ego you might enjoy this book as a way to dominate others, but naturally the more rise the more you look for threats and might feel better if you were dominated a little. This is like a reality check and might do wonders for men and women that feel threatened in their lifestyles.

If you are under sixteen years of age please put this book down now.

The role of the male

The male, as you all know, has a thrust to his delivery of desire. If he were to see a woman that he notices he would probably instantly thrust his privates at her, or just in front of himself. The role of the male therefore is to go forwards into the female, and this shows itself in every day life.

It is also cultural for the man to approach the woman. This is because men have always been looking for women to penetrate. This means that the male is the projector of the relationship, being hormone and culture driven to seek the vagina.

The man is therefore the 'seeker'. The male will most likely serenade the woman with emotional food for her to make her feel safe and special. The man should always try to start the affair in a place where the woman feels comfortable because if she feels uncomfortable then there will be a breakdown in communications as she flees the encounter.

Males must make the woman allow them to engage them, make the woman feel safe and try to develop further trust with her. If the woman is intoxicated then it becomes easier as reality is dimmed. Often this is looked down upon but many men enjoy it.

The role of the female

Seeing as how the male thrusts the woman must dodge the thrust, accept the thrust, or invite a thrust. Women are really into being chased as it is relationship building and trust endowing. When the woman's hormones overcome her sense of mistrust she will go from limit to limit allowing the male to get further towards penetrating her with the development of each affair. If the woman wants to allow the physical encounter to develop, she will allow more contact, or, more personal contact.

The woman's role sexually in society is to be the goal. Each time the goal moves the seeker will try to achieve a thrust to the goal. Many women make it hard to achieve her acceptance and this can annoy, or there might be a genuine disinterest.

Culturally women have developed a more aware sense of the world. They will look for lifestyle first, after trust, and then allow the lifestyle to find them. This is often to impress peers but can also be to look for trust in security beyond the physical. If there is a way to tell which men are to be trusted they will look to who they hold company with.

Nearly all sexual cultures are based on what men need to do to be welcome by women. If they find themselves unwelcome they will try to change their demeanor to be more like what the women want. The more the woman accept one sort of person, the more men will want to reverse the seeker - goal relationship to grab the attention of the women that are around.

The hormones of a woman will make them desire sex too, but it is easy for a woman to overpower her primal emotions in favour of her security. Women find beauty in features, body language, success and anything that emits power, excitement or someone they find healthy that their hormones guide them too. Naturally healthy also means that they are slim and handsome, or even cute and loveable in terms of something that you recognise as innocent and downtrodden.

The role of the woman is to allow the male to thrust themselves at them. If they do not cooperate they do not find a partner. The woman may make it easier for the seeking male to approach them with an invitation. Seeing as how the male is the opportunist the woman must say yes, no, or may seek trust in lifestyle and security any way they see fit.

Simple sexual encounters

Eye contact

This is where someone is aware of someone else looking at them. People will look at one another because of their interest in them based on health and beauty. People must be able to hold eye contact to begin an encounter. This is the first step to begin an affair.

If people find discomfort with eye contact then they do not like the pressure on them or do not respect the other person socially. If eye contact is broken the other person will feel 'harmed' socially as they have not received any compliments. The more a person gathers eye contact the less they will respect others, and seeing as how men are the seekers they make women more confident with dealing with them and so forth.

Women seeking eye contact usually just want to flaunt their beauty and then try to impress their confidence onto someone else that has less confidence as a woman acting as a seeker means they will not be hurt if they are rejected, as if they were driving someone else's car.

Kissing

Kissing is a primal desire. To want to kiss someone means you want to touch them and get personal on the most basic of levels. Every mammal kisses, look at cats, dogs, rabbits... they all kiss. This sort of encounter is simple and sweet. Often a woman will kiss the winner of a race, the receiver of an award, or even a total stranger that she finds attractive.

When people kiss they will be reading the other in terms of how much they like them - which means that they want to feel desirable - and also enjoying the closeness of the encounter as the lips are very animated and relay information about the desire of the other towards them. They will also be able to let their sensitive areas probe the areas of another, enjoying not only the idea of kissing them, but also the feedback from them.

Kissing is all about communication. If you look to animals, they all communicate with their mouths, yes? If you were to notice any kissing experience it is the sensitive part of the body being placed on the other's body somewhere. The more sensitive the area is the more you want to kiss it, take a breast for example. People want to touch them as fingers are sensitive. You don't hear of a shoulder being placed onto a breast, do you? The more sensitive the area the more you want to kiss it. This is communication, and we are social animals, and hormone drive us to 'communicate' with the opposite sex.

Kissing is also an art as it is a form of communication. Communication is based on things we understand others understand. When someone wants to kiss another they will usually think of that as the beginning of a more developed sexual encounter, once again coming back to the beauty of the other and the mood of the woman. If you were to kiss someone that doesn't kiss you back then the communication has broken down and the other person does not wish to develop an affair with you.

Kissing is thought of as something to do in private or for attention. You will find beautiful people like to kiss in public to be seen kissing another, as sexual culture finds danger exciting. When people kiss in public they feel danger that the other person may pull away from fear, or that they will pull away at all means they feel the danger of 'sexual cultural rejection'. This kind of rejection is not life threatening but if the person is beautiful they will have security in knowing there is someone else ready for them but not yet found. That is why most kisses in public are short due to peer pressure. The less outgoing the person is the less they will accept giving a kiss in public.

You can have a lot of fun with kissing. You may be creative with it or just devour the other with your desire for them, which becomes less artistic the more you cannot control your hormones.

Fondling

Fondling is where contact is focused on the body of another. When people fondle they will try to explore the sensitive areas of each other. They do this because they want to feel the areas that are part of the other person. When men focus on breasts or legs they want to feel the areas they see.

The breast is hidden from view, and men do not have them, so they look at them as a mystery. On a topless beach they are all on display and the opportunity to see more of the woman is allowed to them. While hidden from view they will be visible yet not visible, only the outline is there to see.

The legs are seen often and men often judge women by the health of their legs. They represent the woman's movements, as motion appeals to people due to their need for excitement, being that the legs are always moving back and forth and provide a lot of input to the sensory load of the males. This stimulation will give changing information on how the woman looks, with one leg hiding the other, making it a tease. Men get into this habit of looking at legs due to an influx of information from them, always giving them information about the health of the woman and the amount of flesh to squeeze. If there is too much flesh they will see it as not being sensual.

Women like men's chests and muscles as a way to gather information on thrust power and dominance physically over other people. That said it is as if the female psyche is geared to using the males to propel themselves socially. This is an inherent habit as our primal drives are hardwired to our minds. Why else would they consider beauty? If they were to have an incentive to like a man he should fill their security needs, or, make them feel like they are 'playing with fire', and that means the male is able and fit.

Developed encounters

When someone wants to go further in terms of intimacy with the other person there may be smoe resistance, naturally from the female due to lack of trust.

When the encounter goes past fondling then it is usually due to the woman's trust being satisfied, or, exciting enough to make her aroused primally, as if they were being a bad girl, or, someone that men woud pay attention to - primally recognised social status.

When it comes to sex partners today often use a condom. This is called safe sex... duh! Safe sex is good because both people are safer and it doesn't make the affair that much worse.

Sex has a lot of positions. Naturaly most encounters will end with the male oing forwards ontop of the female. If the woman is taking control and wants to 'mount' her 'find' than she will climb out onto their partner and feel the power over them. The male will feel as if he is being dominated by someone less powerful than himself and will feel as if he is being overpowered, thinking of himself as if he was so desirable that he had no choice but to submit!

Oral sex

Oral sex is usually divided into 'blow jobs' for men and 'vagina eating' for women. When sex gets boring oral sex becomes dominant as it is pleasing the other person with your desire for them, and this relay of desire makes the other person feel loved, and therefor makes the giver feel as if they are submitting.

This feeling of submission means they will have no choice but to keep giving as they are now 'food'. Everyone wants to feel they are food for the other sex as it gives them security if female, or, gives them a maternal impulse if they are men - that they are giving charity.

Now when they are spoiling thier partner, participants will enjoy the thought of the other person having sex with them while they are 'aware', as if they were making a fool of the other!

Sometimes people will please each other with oral sex at the same time. This is where they mutually make a fool of the other, as the primal drive of someone is to escape from fear, and the fear of being unaware while the other is aware leads them to dampening their own fear by saying they are aware, as fear of the unknown is a horrible feeling. By feeling aware while the other is not is quite natural as it makes you feel in control!

Exhibitionism

This is like a display of submission. If a man were to reveal his privates to a woman they would be saying they are comfortable with them looking at thier private. This is very childish as it challanges the lack of nudity in society, childish because it is rebelling against society in terms of it being a way to express yourself with clothing that you wear to make yourself to feel comfortable. It is a sexual rebellion like streaking, also to gain attention.

The most common form though is male nudity. The woman needs trust and security to feel comfortable because that is how her mind works. The men will often streak because the security lies in them and they subconsciously realise that they are not threatened with exposure.

When a male wants to please a woman he may masturbate in font of them. This will make them feel very comfortable with the encounter as the woman feels that they are being made love to yet are putting thier lover up for display to thier eyes only.

Due to the social security of the woman she will find herself exposing less and less.

Sometimes women will reveal their breasts to men. This temporary unveiling will make them feel as if they are playing with fire, yet completely safe in the group they are in. Think of a bunch of women skinny dipping? They do this because they want to be exciting and feel danger, like gambling. Danger is felt and excites their primitive primal nervous system to emit a flow of adrenaline and other things to make it feel like something they shouldn't do as it is rebellious, but will strike fear into the hearts of others with their 'brazen outburst', basically...

Clothing fantasies

When people want to feel exciting they may wear the clothes of their lover. They may even do this secretly as that is even more dangerous. No matter how much pressure we feel socially we will always test the limits if it is safe.

When a man pulls on a stocking they want to feel as if they are really a woman, identifying themselves as women when they look at themselves. This is because they want to feel attractive because they are inclined towards their role in society. If women wore what men wore, and vice versa, then they would see pants as a naughty affair, logically.

Women wear men's clothing because they want to feel powerful, strong, and free of the gossip they delve into. Women are free to wear any clothing in Western culture though, so cross dressing is not that much fun for a woman. This means cross dressing is only fun if it is not allowed or is not common!

Bondage

To feel even more vulnerable, due to inability to cope with the lifestyle you lead due to fear, men often cast themselves into something that makes them feel prepared for other danger. When people tie themselves up and become immobile they think of themselves as if they were facing a glimpse of reality. It is suggested that for stress relief this be tried.

Often people are tied to beds. Good ways to do this would be to use simple ties or handcuffs. Of course it is mutual so the person tied up will be able to speak... unless of course they are gagged or something potentially dangerous like that!

Using a feather to tickle someone that is bound is a great way to tease them, unless they are short tempered or something. Should spice up any bedroom.

Ice blocks are a great way to make someone squirm. They may be bound and subjected to a bit of foreplay by making them tense up and sideways trying, naturally, to avoid the ice.

Cruelty is great for this as it means the unanswered questions of trust will reveal themselves, seeing how much trust there is between each person, and how willing they are to show their real selves. Everyone at heart is a sadist because they fear being controlled and want to control the lives of others, and this is a great way to relieve that fear and feel like a master for just a little while at least.

Shoes

When a male is into submission they will sometimes want to serenade woman with bonding with their garments. One such venture is to kiss the woman's shoes, once again awareness versus ignorance. The fact that it is a shoe means that it is the lowest form of submission, leading to a serenade of total devotion. If they do this for a total stranger then it is like going all in in poker.

If the male wishes he may go from kissing the shoe to licking the shoe. This is the next step and will make the woman feel even more spoilt, once again coming from the maternal feeling of caring for the emotions of another.

Taking it a step further means that the male might try to penetrate the shoe, or do his business on the shoe. This is a great way to 'get your jollies off' and create much joy.

Candles

Candle wax is getting more exciting but is not that dangerous at all. If you are having a candle lit night at home then you can easily transfer this onto the other person as long as they say yes.

It is advised that you wait before doing this, even putting it off for as long as possible, as if you were running from it. The more dangerous it feels the better it will be in practice, like looking at a present on Christmas eve.

The pain coming from the candle is not that extreme. It is good clean fun.

Knives

When everything else gets boring you could reach for knives. Even if you were to take a steak knife and push as hard as you can when you slit the other person then it will only make a small hardly noticeable cut that will heal quickly, especially with a tan!

The pain felt is quite intimate as it is harm that you submit to. If you were to feel pain from your lover then it is also a dispersal of fear, thinking that they might hurt you emotionally, yet you are ready for it.

I suggest using knives with couples that do not trust each other. The actual scene where the one is willing to trust the other makes for more trust.

Sexcapade was written by Brett Nortje. I hope you enjoyed it!